PRAISE! THE BOAT IS IN!

We have had a group of five wonderful ladies to start our February off right! We spent time with the teenagers and the beautiful ladies in the brothel. We invited the ladies to the mission to do crafts where we made purses out of hankchiefs. Betty, (bottom right) is 1 of 12 ladies who came! Four of those ladies also joined us for worship on Sunday morning! One of the days we walked through a little place called Knobien which is past Twa Rivya. We have walked this path many times. We always stop and share with our visitors about the voodoo tree along the path (top right). Well, they were having a major ceremony there. They had buried gifts for satan. They had candles lit and the voodoo drum was beating like crazy. We stopped and just started praying in the name of Jesus for these satan worshippers to have their eyes open to Jesus. Later one of the voodoo people came up to our Haitian interpreter. He said, if those white people want Satan to answer their prayers they have to give him a gift first before they pray. Who would have imagined that they would think we were stopping to pray to satan! It totally broke my heart when I heard a woman by the tree saying she loved satan and he was the one that gives her everything! I felt sorry for the little kids that live in the hut across from the tree. They have to be so afraid. Voodoo is real and satan worshipping is real! They are already beginning their parades down the street. Even in our churches in Haiti there are very few, though they will not admit it, that still keep satan appeased. Satan is the big bully and you don't want to make him mad. We sang "How Great Thou Art" as we walked along the trail. Satan cannot stand to hear the name of Jesus or any worship songs. So we continue to walk the trails sharing with the people. We stopped two places afterwards and prayed for two sick women. We walked along the shore of the river and greeted the market people. Don't tell anyone but I even danced with some man who was playing music! I think the apostle Paul said be all things to all people so you can win some. I don't know though if that meant dancing with them but I sure had fun and I sure made a lot of people laugh!
